

Each item within the Century Office collections has its own page in the price list, clearly outlining the options that are appropriate for that piece. It has an easy to read step-by-step procedure, culminating in the creation of a "configuration ID" that may be used to readily communicate the options desired. An example of this page is shown on the facing page.

Step 1.

Choose from one of the available finishes. Finishes are represented in the catalog and on the website. Additionally, actual finish samples may be found at your local retailer or designer.

Step 2.

Line art of different hardware styles is provided in the price list, images are provided in the catalog and on the website.

Step 3.

Some pieces provide a variety of top options. Our executive desk may be ordered with a standard wood top, a leather inlay, a fancy face veneer or a bow front top.

Step 4 & 6.

With seven pedestals, the functional needs of the user are sure to be met. There are options ranging from file drawers to PC storage.

Step 5.

The kneespace area in a desk may be open or incorporate a drawer or a variety of keyboard trays.

Step 7.

Locks supply yet another method of customization.

Step 8.

Although grommets provide great functionality, some prefer not have them in their top surfaces. Because each desk is made to order, it is your choice.

Step 9.

The optional display shelf on the approach side of the desk is popular means to display your book collection or decorative articles.

Step 10.

To complete the ergonomic offering, a flat panel monitor arm is available to hold the screen at just the right height, without taking away valuable desktop space.
